

MAMA LEONE

"Jergovic is an enormously talented storyteller." —Aleksandar Hemon
A masterful collection of stories that draws the reader into a boy's episodic, profoundly personal recounting of his war-torn homeland and childhood. Dazzling, rhapsodic, and above all compassionate, these linked stories, deeply rooted in place and history, break down stereotypes and humanize a complex cultural conflict. Miljenko Jergovic, born in 1966, is a poet, novelist, and journalist. He was awarded the Ivan Goran Kovacic Award and the Mak...

Peek Inside the Book

Da se ne bi rasplakao nad sobom i svojom stranom sudbinom, Vukota je uinio ono to je u ovakvim situacijama uvijek dobro i ljekovito: poeo je krajem oka gledati djevojku; ono po sistemu mukarac sam i...

Reader's Opinions

Moja omiljena Miljenkova knjiga. Sve poslije mi nisu bile kao ova.

This could quite reliably be looked at as a companion volume to Sarajevo Marlboro, a collection set up in much the same way. The major differences are a much broader look at the Tito-era childhood of 'Miljenko', who may or may not make a much smaller appearance in the other volume,...
