

THE PARTY'S OVER: OIL, WAR AND THE FATE OF INDUSTRIAL SOCIETIES

"The world is about to change dramatically and forever as the result of oil depletion. Within the next few years, the global production of oil will peak. Thereafter, even with a switch to alternative energy sources, industrial societies will have less energy available to do all the things essential to their survival. We are entering a new era as different from the industrial era as...

Reader's Opinions

As a daily newspaper journalist I once attempted to research and write a Front Page story detailing the problems associated with Peak Oil. It was part of my intellectual growth, I suppose, in that I was awakening to energy issues and beginning to incorporate them into my knowledge of urban planning and transportation issues. I remember...

The only book I have ever reached the end of, then turned around and started over from the beginning, it is an eye-opening exposition of Peak Oil, the observation that the world will soon enter a dire period of declining oil production. While he does wax toward hyperbole and some impractical social arrangements near the end, the first...
